

ARMY AND NAVY NOTESDREAM WARNING FATAL
"L" Road Workman Killed After Telling of Nightmare.

James Burke, twenty-seven years old, No. 638 East 137th street, a trackman, was killed on the structure of the Third avenue elevated railroad, where he was working, just below Brooklyn Bridge, by a shock from the third rail yesterday.

He had been telling the other workmen about a nightmare that he had had the night before in which he thought he was being torn and bitten by great apes, when he picked up his crowbar and started to cross the tracks. He missed his footing and stepped between two ties. There was a flash of blue flame as his crowbar touched the third rail. He was killed instantly.
